FROM HIS HIGH TOWER.
Teufelsdröckh says interesting things—the widow knitting for a livelihood, gamblers over their rouge of noir, peasants from the country, condemned wits, where murderers sat listening to hammering on the gallow.

It is less romantic looking down from New York's Ritz tower over buildings where a few live with millions, and farther east and west where millions live a little.

But one rooftop early yesterday morning might have listened the Angel Gabriel, who writes what we do.

The roof was divided by neat green fences into playgrounds, and there you could see at play, rolling and tumbling over each other in the bright sunshine, happy chow dogs, brushing good air, far above automobile fumes and dangers, enjoying the sun's health-giving actinic rays.

To the east and west children were playing in the gutters, dodging trucks, breathing in gas from exhaust pipes. No playgrounds for them on the roofs. Their fathers pay low rents. It would not pay to fuss over them.

Writing more about that you could drift into "Boishevian."

It is some comfort to know that the King's horse, recent winner of His Majesty's first "classic" race in several years, was treated all winter with artificial actinic rays. Also, in London, actinic ray treatment is given to valuable apes that do not like the British climate.

In the way of real news to interest a practical nation, nothing much worth while.

The usual music and flowers for Decoration Day, with very old survivors of the Civil War proud to parade, and younger men proud of their golf scores.

No news from the brave Italian, Nobile. But hope is not abandoned. The Russian government will join the search for him, so that the two extremes of theory in government, Communism and Mussolinism, both alike in autocratic absolutism, are united in good work.

Congress is dead for the present. The House adjourned cheering Longworth, the Senate adjourned cheering Daves—both, especially Daves, material for the Republican nomination "if anything should happen to Mr. Hoover's friends' plans."

Some ladies, united in politics, raise a warning finger, saying to the G. O. P. leadership: "If you don't nominate Hoover, we shall leave our party and vote for Smith."

They remind you of the bitter saying: "You said he was going to fight the garden 'to eat worms.'"

Big business news is the Chrysler-Dodge automobile merger. One or two more combinations and four or five concerns would make all the cars A. thoughtfully publisher says: "That would be bad for advertising." But it might not be.

Today's task is to make a "two-car family" of the "one-car family," and of the "two-car family" a "three-car family." That can and should be done, but it calls for advertising, which is advertisement in the mass.

Twenty-four million automobiles are running in America. At least 10,000,000 more are needed. That calls for intelligent advertising.

Expose Heflin on Klan Payroll BID FOR VOTE AGAINST READING

BITTER FIGHT OVER COMMITTEE REPORT EXPECTED IN HOUSE

The legislative committee which investigated the conduct in office of Atty.-Gen. Arthur K. Reading will tomorrow recommend impeachment proceedings, according to rumors about the State House today.

The report will be filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives tomorrow. It is of course in length and contains denunciations of many of Reading's acts in office. It is considered.

The committee, headed by Representative George F. Jones of Norwood, met in a three-hour conference today and went over the final draft of the report. Few changes were necessary in its text. Representative Jones said, although there remains much to be done.

There is every indication, both from the committee attitude and the activity of the attorney-general's friends that the report will recommend that impeachment proceedings be taken.

TENT BALLROOM BURNS; PEARL GUARDS HIS CASH

Flames swept the Tent ballroom at 285 Huntington ave. early today less than an hour after the dancing had ceased, the crowds had left and the musicians and attendants were gone.

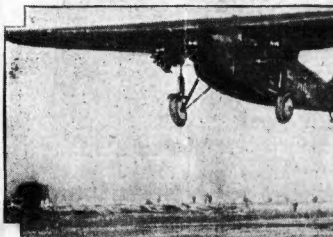

In its sweep the fire destroyed the dance floor and valuable mirrors, furniture and fixtures. Damage is estimated at $10,000.

So intense was the heat that firemen were unable to enter the dance hall until they had first sent thousands of gallons of water into the furnace from the doorway.

Mossy Pearl, proprietor of the Tent, was at his home when notified of the fire. He returned to the dance hall and, after the flames were extinguished, stood guard until his banking time over a safe containing $10,000.

The fire is believed to have started from a smoldering cigarette.

TELEPHONE GIRLS FLEE BOARD WHEN LIGHTNING BOLT HITS CITY HALL

Lightning, which flashed over downtown Boston today, accompanied by sharply crackling thunder struck at City Hall, jolting the elevators out of commission, driving telephone operators from the switchboards and causing general confusion.

The rumble of thunder was so heavy in that vicinity that persons in both the main building and the annex felt its structure tremble.

The bolt which penetrated the old wing of the building facing School street was crashing down the elevator shaft by Councilor Timothy Donovan, Representative Joseph Smith and Representative Lucius Barker, who were standing on the second floor.

near the mayor's office. It stranded one of the two elevators at the third floor and the other in the basement. All the time in the main building and the annex felt its structure tremble.

Dying Radium Victims

New Jersey girls, victims of radium poisoning, who are doomed to a lingering death because of their work in the United States Radium Corporation during the war when they used their tongues to point brushes in painting dials, have volunteered to submit to scientific experiments in the hope of aiding others. The girls are planning to see the doctor. Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, toxicologist, asserts that for the victims still living to submit to experiments is of vital importance to science. Madame Marie S. Curie, noted woman scientist, says all hope for the victims is gone, now that radium has asserted their systems. It is believed by scientists that experimentation on living beings may result in knowledge that will be of incalculable value to the generations to come. The self sacrifice of the doomed girls, they say, will be a boon to the entire world.

FOUR NATIONS JOIN IN HUNT FOR NOBILE'S LOST CREW

(By International News Service.)

Four nations are now joined in the search for Gen. Umberto Nobile, Italian Polar explorer, and his 37 companions, but the hunt is still in its preliminary stages owing to violent gales or snow and wind over the Arctic.

Sweden has united with Norway, Soviet Russia and Italy in the quest for the ill-fated expedition. Capt. Thorsberg of the Swedish air force was due at Oslo today to ascertain how many Swedish naval aviators should be used.

More than six days have passed since the frozen north swallowed up the exploration balloon Italia and its brave crew. Their fate is a secret locked up in the snow and ice of the Arctic. Whether they were able to descend or whether they perished amidst the desolate ice flows of the polar sea is not known.

Relief workers have not yet given up hope, however, and three expeditions are well under way, but the City of Milano, the Italia's base ship, was forced to turn back to King's Bay because it faced the danger of being broken up by the pressure of ice floes at Madeline Bay.

The steamer Isarandana, chartered by the Italian government, is believed to be nearing King's Bay with a detachment of Italian Alpine troops who will scour the Arctic wastes, using dog-sledges.

The Norwegian ice-breaker Holm is now en route to Spitzbergen from Tromsø, Norway. Lieut. Holm, a famous Norwegian flier, and his airplane are aboard. The Holm will go as far north as the ice will permit and Holm will scan the region where Strohm was last heard.

Nobile's Wife and Daughter Praying Daily for Rescue

Rome, May 31 (AP)—The thoughts of Italy today turned to Signora Carlotta Nobile, wife of Gen. Umberto Nobile, and their little daughter Maria.

The mother and child, surrounded by a few friends, go to mass daily in the church of San Gioacchino, where a tridium is being conducted for the safety of the General and his men.

Until yesterday they received tributes from friends and embassies in comfort. Finally, however, Signora Nobile was over-come and locked herself in her room and spent the day in prayer.

Earlier in the week she went to St. Peter's and prayed at the grave of Pope Pius X.

IMPEACHMENT FOR READING IS LIKELY

other hand, the House votes not to accept an impeachment report, then the work of the committee and its recommendations will have been of no avail, and Reading's official status will in no way be affected.

The general belief is that the House will accept an impeachment report after a battle. In such case the actual impeachment trial before the Senate will be a long-drawn-out and voluminous affair, probably requiring far greater time than did the committee investigation and the points brought out during the committee seven weeks probe.

LIGHTNING HITS HOP OFF FROM U. S. FOR HAWAII

The electrical wiring operating the elevators were blown out.

Flashes leaped from the main City Hall switchboard, driving ten girl operators into temporary flight, while Miss Mildred Moorman, at the switchboard controlling calls to Mayor Nichols' office, was likewise driven away.

As the flash shot down the elevator well it seemed to leap sideways at the second floor and dart toward a fire extinguisher on the wall, according to Councilor Donavan.

FAIR WEATHER IS DUE Throughout the building there was considerable excitement, official and clerical, fearing certain that the building had been struck somewhere.

Inspection proved that the bolt entered the building without causing damage to roof or walls, but electrical experts had to be called to put the elevators in operation again and telephone workers were ordered to inspect the switchboards and wiring.

The telephone girls resumed their regular duties after a short interim, caused by weather signs that the brief storm had passed on.

The lightning, virtually "a bolt from the blue," was the tail-end of the series of storms that have harassed the city for many days.

The weather man reported, predicting that the bad weather just is over on vacation.

Fair, clear and moderately cool weather is promised for at least 24 hours, probably longer.

The only storm signs are far away on the Gulf coast, according to the Ohio river valley and the Lake region, is moving eastward, bringing gusty westerly winds.

Licensed as Pilot After Only 10 Hours in Air

Proving the most apt pupil ever instructed at the Boston Airport, Aly Bey Yehia, an Egyptian, who plans to establish a plane service at Alexandria, has received his pilot's license from State Inspector Robert L. O'Brien after 10 hours in the air in the past two weeks.

Lieut. A. M. Backstrom, chief pilot of the Bay State Flying Service, was his instructor for five hours and 25 minutes, after which Yehia had four and one-half solo hours in the air. This is the quickest time in which any student has learned to fly at the airport.

Yehia may buy several planes manufactured in this country for his Egyptian air route.

The ships along the route to Honolulu.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith said just before taking off: "I have realized an ambition of eight years. The ship is equipped as finely as humanly possible to equip a ship."

"And we will see you in Honolulu," several dozen sandwiches, coffee and hot soup, in thermos bottles, chocolate and concentrated foods were taken by the crew. The plane also carries emergency rations for one week.

The aviators hope to fly from Hawaii to live, in the Fiji islands, then to Brisbane, Australia, and thence to Sydney, their destination.

The fliers began their flight minus about $10 in cash owing to an invasion of their quarters by a burglar, Tuesday night, while they slept. Tim's wallet, containing $10 and a check for $10, was missing when they awoke. Lyon lost $10.

WATCH & WARD AGENT BOUGHT RUM IN RITZ, HE TESTIFIES

Raymond L. Perry, agent for the New England Watch and Ward Society, testified in Superior court today that he purchased liquor from five waiters of the Hotel Ritz on Columbus ave.

During the cross-examination of Perry, first government witness in the trial of the waiters, mention of an alleged conspiracy to "shake down" the proprietor of the Ritz was made for the first time.

In response to a question by Atty. Robert J. Gallagher, the witness denied that he had taken part in any conspiracy to extort money from John J. Sullivan, the hotel proprietor.

The Watch and Ward agent admitted he had previously been employed to ride a horse while dressed as a crusader, to advertise a well-known brand of flour.

Under direct examination by Atty. Perry, Joseph Scullion, the witness testified he bought liquor on different occasions from each of the five defendants, who are Thomas Ryan, Thomas Mack, Daniel Tracy, Peter Pappas and Herbert Smith.

WOMEN WITH HIM Perry testified he paid $5.00 a pint for liquor, except gin, for which he paid Pappas $3. He said his wife was with him on practically all occasions when he bought liquor at the hotel and that they were accompanied by Miss Marion Raymond, a social worker, of 3 Joy st., when the gin was obtained. Miss Mildred Towle, also a social worker, of 73 Taylor st., South End, was with him and his wife on another occasion, the witness said.

Atty. Gallagher was permitted to go into the alleged extortion conspiracy only to the extent of two questions. He then asked Perry if he knew a Miss Eva Magann and when the witness appeared a bit hazy, a young woman was asked to stand up in the courtroom. Perry looked at the girl and then admitted he knew her.

He was also asked if he stopped at the Hotel La Salle on Warren st., and admitted that he did. Asked if he knew Alpha Howard, while he was in Worcester, Perry said: "Yes." It was brought out that the woman was a member of the "Candy Kid Company," a burlesque theatrical organization. Perry said he met her in October of 1921.

SAW POLICE OFFICERS Atty. Gallagher then went into Perry's testimony before the licensing board when the case of the Ritz came up following the arrest of the waiters.

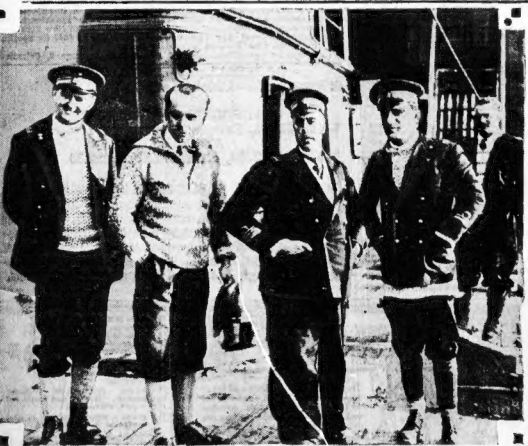

"Do you remember testifying before the licensing board that a police sergeant in full uniform and another man in civilian clothes walked by you when you were in the Ritz restaurant?"

"Yes, they did," Perry replied. "The sergeant in full uniform and a man in civilian clothes walked down by my booth. Both looked in at me then they walked back and looked again and then went out."

Perry said that after buying the liquor he labeled each bottle and the following day took it to the office of the Watch and Ward Society. In the presence of Nicholas Cookman, chief agent, he would relabel the bottle, both would mark it, and he would leave it in Cookman's possession.

Ten pints of liquor were on exhibition in court, and in all cases the bottles were about half empty.

LYNN OPERATOR NEARLY TRAPS GEM THIEF

A Lynn telephone girl heavily attempted to frustrate a daring jewelry store robbery early today, but without success.

Miss Vera Preston of St Andrew st., Lynn, had just left her switchboard in the Andrew st., Lynn, exchange and was on her way home. She stopped for a moment to admire the gems in the window of the jewelry store at St Andrew st.

As she gazed she noticed a hole in the show window, about one foot in diameter. Running quickly to her home she telephoned the police. Then she returned to the store.

As she was nearing it she saw a man leaving, apparently carrying a tray with him. As she approached, the man started to run. Miss Preston started in pursuit, but quickly was outdistanced.

The police and the owner soon arrived. It was found that the thief had taken watches and rings valued at $300. Inside the store was found half of a red brick, which had broken the window.

He is visiting here, he said in his room at the Ritz-Carlton, only to view the historic spots of Greater Boston and in visiting to fulfill a desire he has had since a youth, when thoughts of movie fans were far away.

Thus far he has become enthusiastic over the hallowed memories of Faneuil Hall and the view of the Public Garden from his hotel window.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 31 (EN)—A throw back to the dueling period, with shotguns taking the place of silver-mounted pistols, or slim rapier, started this play-day community today and resulted in the arrest of one man and sending another to a hospital with buckshot in his abdomen and left arm.

As a result of an appointed meeting at dawn on the Holly road, 15 miles from here, William Blanton, 38, a poultry raiser, was in a hospital while his adversary, Charles Stewart, 43, a farmer of Colerose, N. The quarrel started Memorial Day, according to Stewart. The men agreed to meet today and shoot it out.

HOW POWER TRUST TURNS OUT REGIMENTS OF SPEAKERS

Washington, May 31 (INS)—Regiments of men and women speakers, carrying their "message" to approximately 1,000,000 persons yearly, are maintained by the electric power interests to turn the public against the Boulder Dam project, municipal ownership, and critics of the utilities, it was disclosed.

Official records in the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of the so-called power trust showed that this organized battalion has spread to virtually every area in the country, except the northwest, where public ownership of utilities is common with a strong popular following.

In well-organized sections, the documents disclosed, audiences are card-indexed to avoid duplication of speeches.

REPORT OF ACTIVITIES

New York city and state public speaking activities are diagrammed, minutes of a meeting of the New York state committee on public utility information, held last April 19, noted.

Being unable to be present in person, Frank W. Smith, chairman of the speakers' committee submitted a written report and photographs of a diagram showing the activities of the public speaking committee. The report stated that for the five months, November to March, 1923, 140 addresses had been made to audiences aggregating 232,278.

These addresses were made by 41 different speakers and secured 254,400 columns of newspaper publicity.

CLASSES IN SPEAKING

He further stated that Mr. W. R. Dawson, president of W. & R. Dawson & Co., had been added to the general committee, and that Mr. John N. Carlin, president Northern New York Utilities, Inc., had consented to assume the chairmanship of the district No. 5.

"He called particular attention to the activities of some of the companies in creating instruction classes in public speaking."

The general these battalions are carrying into colleges, high schools, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, women's organizations and a multitude of other bodies was stated by James P. Owens, chairman of the public relations section of the National Electric Light Association. Owens is an official of the Oklahoma Gas & Electric Company of Oklahoma City.

MAN ONE BIG JOE

"The utility has but one job, one big job, and that is to keep the public shut out of the picture, to keep ourselves to be. If there is any better way of disseminating information than the spoken word, I have yet to learn it."

Of the minutes worked by this spoken word over the country, at the expense of the rate-paying consumer, the minutes told their own story.

W. R. Powers, public relations chairman of the east-central division, reported organizations set up in West Virginia and Ohio, but "much explaining was not necessary, as there was practically no action for municipal or state ownership."

WAKING PUBLIC SPEAKERS

Keith Spade, Illinois speakers' bureau director, reported.

"Nineteen schools were held in Illinois in the last two years with an approximate attendance of 500. Out of these 500 approximately 120 turned out to be what are classified as "A" speakers, and these people are, qualified to speak before the hardest groups to approach, namely, the civic, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs."

Public speaking in the Middle West division was "far from what it should be," L. O. Ripley, committee chairman, mourned.

"A survey made shortly before the Atlantic City convention showed that during the 12 months previous there were 140 speeches."

Good cheer was spread by Sam F. Marquette, New England chairman. "Notices were sent out last week by the speakers' bureau of the New England bureau of public utility information to some 2500 clubs and organizations, advising that the committee was prepared to furnish speakers free of charge on public utility matters, and already several requests have been received."

"In every city where there are civic, Rotary, Kiwanis or Lions' clubs it has been found advantageous to have utility men as active members."

"Pamphlets on electricity were distributed to about 100 high schools throughout the division last year and this resulted in about 900 talks given before those schools."

"Professional speakers are employed throughout the division." The offer of free oratory as moved the speaker, "Here is a Free Ad," a notice saying that though it did not "know the speakers" or "what they have to say," the New England bureau's notice was "carefully done and deserving of confidence."

SUBTLY, A MATTER OF COURSE

Mr. Elliott S. Belden, Director, United Power and Light Corporation, Abilene, Kansas

My dear Mr. Belden:

I am enclosing outlines of the public utility courses recently run in the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University. The plan was put across in the usual way. We laid the groundwork circumpectly and with care so that the actual suggestion that such courses be started came from the faculties of the institutions themselves. The rest was routine.

If there is anything further we can give you, please do not hesitate to call upon us.

Yours very truly,

DIRECTOR

ABOVE is an interesting document introduced into the hearings of the Federal Trade Commission's current investigation of the propaganda and lobby activities of the organized electric power interests.

This letter shows the fine line between hand of J. S. Richardson, who, at the time the letter was written on June 2, 1923, was super agent of the United electric power interests in Pennsylvania, where he was director of the Pennsylvania Public Service Information committee.

Apparently a public utility man in Kansas wanted to know how Richardson had "put across" public utility courses which he had instituted in the University of Pennsylvania. Richardson in this letter tells him:

"I am enclosing outlines of the public utility courses recently run in the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University. The plan was put across in the usual way. We laid the groundwork circumpectly and with care so that the actual suggestion that such courses be started came from the faculties of the institutions themselves. The rest was routine."

Apparently one of the courses that was "put across" by Richardson did not prove very popular with the students, for on October 14, 1923, the records of the Federal Trade Commission show Prof. Thos. J. Grayson of the University of Pennsylvania, writing to Richardson as "My Dear Sam":

"I have not as yet heard from your committee as to whether or not you intend to continue the arrangement of last year whereby any deficit in the course of business economic and political and operation of public utilities would be made good by the committee."

Major Richardson has since then become prominent and is now high powered publicity director of the national power lobby, the joint committee of National Utility Associations.

WOMAN FACES GIRL AND PILOT IN CRASH AT DEATH ON GALLOWES

Florence, Ariz., May 31 (INS)—The first woman in Arizona to be condemned to death, Mrs. Eva Dugan, 36, mother of two children, stood in the shadow of the gallows today. Unless the eleventh-hour appeal for executive clemency is granted, she will be hanged in the state prison tomorrow for the murder of A. J. Mathis, supposed chicken rancher of Tucson.

Mrs. Dugan was convicted of murder when Mathis' body was dug from a shallow grave on his ranch near Tucson more than a year after he had mysteriously disappeared. The woman, who had been Mathis' housekeeper, was serving a prison term here for the theft of her employer's automobile when the murder was discovered.

Mathis was a reclusive and wealthy.

A Story of Gay Life and a Battle of Hearts

CHAPTER 27
LETTERS said. The big cedar chest under the windows held the accumulation of almost a decade. Gay dragged the chest on the casters to the hearth and kneeling beside it, her giddy hair hiding her cheeks, delved in.

There were countless letters. Fat letters and thin. Special deliveries letters bearing the postmarks of 50 cities, 29 college towns, a dozen summer resorts. Yellowed, warping triangles in the upper left-hand corners.

She read a few letters chosen at random, but discovered that reading them invariably engendered a desire to receive them, and so flung the remainder to the flames without a glance inside their envelopes.

Suddenly she was crying. Crying miserably. Crying because a sense of the ineffable sadness and the terrible impermanence of youth had descended on her. Because she had felt old, and utterly, irreversibly finished.

She bowed her forehead to her bent knees and wept it there. "Oh," she whispered, "I wouldn't care—I wouldn't mind—if I was young."

WARNS OF CAUTION IN PURCHASING FISH

Director of Health Laboratory

The enormous receipts of fish at the port of Boston should ensure both excellent quality and low prices. Sometimes, from one cause or another, the catch as it reaches the consumer has been polluted.

Among the letters received to the following concerning unwholesome fish:

"I have been reading in your column in the Boston Evening American of the efforts you have been making to clean up conditions in regard to the sale of fish. I am a fisherman, and I am sure that you will appreciate a word from me as to what I have to say in purchasing fish."

"I am sure that the housekeepers would appreciate a word from you as to what to look for in purchasing fish."

"In buying fish for your table, there are a few things which may be noted in the condition of the article about going to very much trouble. This is particularly true in determining whether the fish is fresh or stale."

"When fish is fresh, the eyes are bulging, and the color of the eyes is white. The blood is a red color, and on the gills are the gills. When the fish is held in the hand, there is a firmness and rigidity to the flesh. In the plate fish, conditions are quite different."

Fortunately for domestic comfort, the tobacco-colored Leo, who could do nothing and, because of an avial attachment to his master and a secret sympathy for him, willingly did.

Gay's days were useless days, all day every morning she awoke conscious that Alan had been down and kissed her goodbye while she gazed through a doorway into the living room of the room. She would mumble "bye" and turn over, nursing her face into the pillow.

This was the prologue. The day after was the day when the inevitable first cigarette, and the inevitable first conversation with one or another of her feminine acquaintances, followed by tea in some murmurous, aquatic downtown tea room. Sometimes four of them played bridge, with pauses for gossip about the white and the black, the ring of mesh bags and exchanging of money at the end.

Saturday afternoon during the autumn were exceptional: these she spent sitting, furnished in a seat near a forty-yard line, waiting that Alan would not believe "let's go" and "Come on—let's go" and "Hold on!" quite so definitively, and now and then telling him so.

In the evenings there was laughter, there was bubbly talk, there were pretty, polished, feet, in tall glasses, there were plumpness in the flaming canyon of Broadway, there were plaintive orchestra for Gay's spite heels to twinkle to, and men to pay her compliments, and spoken — "Evening when, darling, young married set of which Irene Matthews was ringmaster, and with their muted thrills and wailing war upon the common enemy, Ennui.

All her quarrels with Alan concerned the evenings. In other matters he was tractable, indulging her vagaries smilingly, without protest, but on the subject of evenings he displayed an unexpected obstinacy and a decided mind of his own.

There were three major quarrels that occurred again and again.

One was the conflict between Gay's insatiable appetite for gaiety and Alan's longing for occasional solitude and rest.

"Good Lord!" he would grumble, "Can't we stay at home just once?" "We stayed at home last night," "Yes—and twenty people piled in and stuck around till four A. M. It couldn't help it."

"You invited them."

"I only invited Irene and Ted and the Buller. The others just came."

"Well, I tell you, honey, this Alan, very earnestly. 'This has got to stop. I'm not feeding it. It has, really, it's all very well for you—your ears will be all day long—I have to be on the job every morning at nine sharp, and if you think I to any good around there on those four hours sleep per night—'

"What difference does it make? You work for your father, he wouldn't fire you if you never went."

ACCIDENT INSURANCE POLICY AT ONLY

Nothing More to Pay!

"The Boston Evening American in distributing a $10,000 accident insurance policy at $1 a year in connection with its attempt to reduce the number of accidents is rendering a great public service to the people of Massachusetts and all New England."—Capt. George A. Parker, Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

"The Boston Evening American is in my opinion furthering the cause of safety on the highways substantially through its plan of $10,000 insurance policy for a minimum of $1.—Edward A. Dams, General Manager of the Boston Elevated and President of the Mass. Public Safety Commission."

"Safety is one of our biggest problems. This is a most practical way to meet it. Every thinking person will want $10,000 accident insurance for only $1. This is a sensible offer."—Frank A. Goodwin, Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

"If, as I understand it, the Boston Evening American is offering to write for $1 a year an accident policy for $10,000 to each of its readers, it is one that in my opinion should be accepted by every individual who is offered such an opportunity. I am going to have one of these policies!"—Paulmaster Roland M. Baker.

"The Boston Evening American is to be congratulated upon its interest in promoting the public welfare, evidenced through its plan of offering a $10,000 accident insurance policy for $1."—Honorable David I. Walsh, U. S. Senator of Massachusetts.

"The Boston Evening American is making this offer in connection with its campaign to cut down the growing number of accidents, resulting in death and injury to the citizens of Boston and New England, and I most heartily commend it for the consideration of all."—Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols.

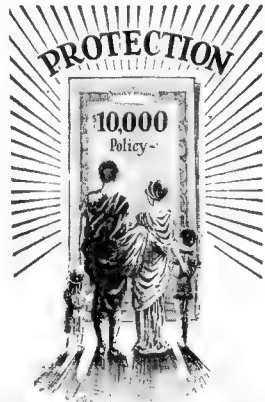

DETERMINED to impress SAFETY on the minds of every family in New England and to fight death and injury through accident or carelessness, the Boston Evening American has undertaken a great public service.

Accidents always seem to happen to those least expecting them and yet scarcely 2% of those killed or injured through accident have made any preparations at all for their dependents. The Boston Evening American believes that no man continually subjecting himself to accident in modern daily life has any right to leave his family unprotected.

We have therefore arranged to distribute one million $10,000 accident insurance policies to the people of New England at ONE DOLLAR as a step further in our campaign for public safety.

Leaders in New England's civic and business life have heartily endorsed the Boston Evening American's plan to protect every family in New England against privation and want due to the injury or loss of the head of the family through accident.

This is an out-and-out offer to provide the most liberal iron-clad insurance policy we have been able to discover. You pay not one cent more than $1 for your policy. Every cent of this dollar goes to the insurance company. The Boston Evening

Tiger Harvard Stadium Plans Are Rejected

RACES TO BE HELD ON SCHUYLKILL, JULY 6-7

New York, (AP)—The Olympic rowing trials on the Schuylkill river hold forth the prospect of the greatest eight-oared naval battle conducted in some time.

For the first time in years neither New London nor Foughkeepsie will furnish the rowing climax. This year the two big college regattas along the Thames and Hudson will be preliminaries to the main sea-faring engagement July 6 and 7 at Philadelphia.

As a matter of fact, if American eight-oared rowing supremacy is as marked in the Olympic trials this year as it has been in the last two international regattas through the efforts of the Naval Academy and Yale crews, the Olympic championship actually will be decided on the Schuylkill river.

Representative as any Olympic regatta has been—and four years ago Australia, Italy, Great Britain, Canada and America were among the chief contenders—it has never had an entry list to compare with the event that will participate in the American regatta this year.

CLUB AND COLLEGE CREWS.

Seven and possibly eight of the best American college variety crews will engage in the regatta at Philadelphia along with the best of the club crews. But the club crews, benefited as they may be by experience, have small chance to take the main honors away from one or another of the well-trained, ambitious college crews, the products of such studious training as young or old Dick Glendon, Ed Leader and Ed Brown.

Navy and Princeton have alighted definitely their intention of entering the Olympic trials in spite of previous defeats. The sailors have four-oared regattas to prepare for first, but the tigers can settle down to preparation for the Olympic regatta away. To judge from "early" performances Princeton will need no extra practice.

Columbia, whether or not it appears in keeping the Foughkeepsie crown, will also be at Philadelphia. Washington and California likewise will have the twin objective for their trip East. Yale, proud of the honors gained for the Blue as well as the Red, White and Blue four years ago at Paris, will attempt to repeat, while Harvard, especially if it is triumphant over the Blue at New London again, is expected to enter the Olympic fleet.

COLUMBIA UPSET DOPE.

This leaves out of consideration only five of the colleges regularly engaged in rowing—Cornell, M. I. T., Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Wisconsin. Kuss College probably will send the Penn eight to the Olympic starting line, since the trials are in its home waters, but none of the others can be counted on as contenders.

The Foughkeepsie regatta, as well as the Harvard Yale duel at New London, involves as close and exciting prospects as any in recent years. The Washington Navy combination, after holding away for six years, was broken up last June by the Columbia from little more than a year. The sailors dropped back to fourth in that race and they haven't shown much in competition this year.

Eastern critics already have established Columbia as a favorite to repeat, with the chief opposition likely to be furnished by Washington and California. Pennsylvania and Cornell both have shown marked improvement. Both will at least put up much stronger bids than they have in several years, but Syracuse is well below the usual Orange standard.

Washington's crews have been invited to stop off on their way east at Detroit to relieve the monotony of their trip and get a little practice in practice with the Detroit Boat Club. They may need it and they may also get some encouragement from an old friend, Jim Rice, former Columbia coach now tutoring the Detroit Boat Club crew.

"As you know," advises Jim, "we have the national lightweight crew to handle a fairly heavy crew, so we hope to be able to entertain Washington right royally at our club and on our course."

MOTTE SETS UP NEW RECORD IN CANOE RACE.

Walter Motte of the Dedham Canoe Club won the sixth annual five-mile canoe race on the Charles river yesterday and broke the old record by three minutes when he crossed the finish line at 14 minutes 43 seconds. The race was from Concord street bridge at New London, Mass., to the Moody street bridge in Waltham.

The points for the three-year event are as follows: Crescent Canoe Club, 115; Dedham, 87; Hingham, 60; Concord, 42; Haverhill, 24; and Hingham, 14.

The winners yesterday were: First, Walter Motte (D. C. C.); second, E. Hamon (D. C.); third, George Higgins (C. C. C.); fourth, Gerald Shober (C. C. C.); fifth, R. Bingham (Hingham); sixth, Harold Barber (C. C. C.); seventh, Xavier Colon (C. C. C.); eighth, Frank Lane (D. C. C.); ninth, Alton Burrey (D. C. C.); tenth, I. Volk (Hingham).

WOLLASTON LAD PICKED FOR OLYMPIC TRIALS.

Lawrence M. May, 21—Russell H. Chapman of Wollaston, Mass., Bates freshman who won the half-mile run at both the Maine and New England intercollegiate meets this year, has been selected by the U. S. C. A. to compete at the Olympic trials at Cambridge in July.

Chapman was barred from competing in the national meet because he is only a freshman. He is the only member of the national intercollegiate, but failed to place in the final.

Crimson Crews Off for Red Top Sunday

By TED LYNCH

The Harvard navy has its last workout on the Charles River today before the departure for the New London training camp at Red Top, where the Crimson variety and freshman oarsmen will spend the next three weeks in strenuous preparation for the annual regatta with Yale.

After today's workout the squad will lay off until next Sunday, when Coach Ed Brown, Bert Haines, et al., will move back, stock and barrel for the quarters on the banks of the Thames river.

From Sunday on, the hard tilled period will begin, particularly for the oarsmen who will row the grueling four miles in the variety race.

Harvard's variety crew is one of the heaviest combinations of eight college oarsmen that has ever represented the Crimson on the water.

HENNESSEY TO PLAY SINGLES AND DOUBLES

Chicago, May 31 (AP)—Johnny Hennessey of Indianapolis may carry most of the burden of the United States effort to win the American men's Davis cup tennis title against Japan on the Chicago Town and Tennis Club courts this weekend.

The number of the United States team will be played tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

The matches will be played between Hennessey and the Japanese team, which defeated Canada last week.

It is believed that Hennessey will win the Davis cup tennis title against Japan on the Chicago Town and Tennis Club courts this weekend.

The Davis cup tennis title is being fought for by Hennessey and the Japanese team, which defeated Canada last week.

Belmont Spring Four-Ball Tourney Opens Today

GULFPORT OUT TOWN PRIZE

Woodland Star is Playing in Top Form and Considered a Likely Winner

By LILLY GRIMES

The annual Belmont Spring Country Club 36-hole four-ball best-ball invitation tournament opens today and will continue through Saturday. This event is one of the four-ball classics of the state and the usual large and fast field will compete.

Two gross and two net prizes will be awarded for the leading 36-hole scores but there will also be a gross and net prize donated for the best shooting made for 18 holes, along with a prize for the best drive made off the first tee each day.

Last year Jesse Stoddard of Woodland and E. J. Perkins of Belmont took the first prize while Leroy Grinnell of Belmont and Roy Gorton of New Haven were the runners up.

On net scores, P. P. Hickey and J. P. Edwards topped the field, closely followed by A. T. Hutton and N. B. Loring. Jesse Stoddard, P. P. Hickey and J. P. Perkins were awarded trophies for making the best drives.

The contestants will be allowed one-half of 18 hole hand-plays as well as the stroke count on the card and the average around Belmont in the

The teams must play 36 holes either today (tomorrow or Saturday). Jesse Stoddard is paired up with P. P. Hickey of Belmont and will play in his old time form and as a strong average around Belmont in the the 36's, they should prove one of the best combinations in the field. P. P. Hickey will play with P. P. Hickey of the home club. With Milton Vander, will probably leave up with Leroy P. Gorton of New Haven.

Rogers Gives Gehrig Low Down on Job

DEAR LOU—I have some real news for you this week. Here I am managing the Braves after swearing all sorts of oaths that I would never try to combine playing and managing again.

But the job was put right up to me and I just had to take it. You know that our contracts call for use of services and do not need to be specific about what those services are.

I am getting a pretty big salary, so when the Braves owner told me they had to have me in there, I consented. I have been saying all along that I did not want to manage the club. There was a lot of talk when the Braves grabbed me from the Giants. It was said that I was being brought over to manage, and Jack Harty had only been appointed a couple of weeks before that.

I know that if anything happened there would be a great uproar, and I should be accused of undermining and everything else in the world. But I made a firm resolve never to think of managing. I even went so far as to ask the Braves owner to trade me rather than force the job on me.

My feeling average has been holding up pretty well this spring, and I knew they could get my money back and perhaps a little bit more from a couple of clubs with prominent chances.

But they wouldn't listen to that. So here I am, and I want you and the world to know that I did not understand that I helped Jack Harty as best I knew how, and that I was as much surprised as he to be in the position where I am.

The Braves had a tough time in the spring. Most of the regulars got sick after coming from the South, and then when things were getting on, Slattery came down with the flu. We made the western trip with a lot of convalescing athletes who weren't strong enough to come through. At that, all our games were close ones.

It isn't up to a player to argue the right and wrong of things with the club owners. That they do is their business. Now that I am manager of the club I am going to try to take it on myself. I will think it has the ability to get up in the race, and if driving me, you'll find me right in the lead.

Rogers, and the other fellow is likely to crack has always been my motto.

That's how I took the Cardinals game, and they didn't like it. I was a good at the start. These Braves have straightened out now, and their longest home stand of the year tomorrow, and you can tell all your friends that they'll be better against the West than they did out on the trail. I mean, I can't lose all the tough ones when it is my turn.

Seems sort of natural to have the boys riding me. The more I mean at all, but it's part of the racket and I get a particular kick out of making good when the game is trying to shake me down.

Too much praise may make a ball player or any athlete complacent and conceited. The old riding makes him grit his teeth and go in there to break things wide open.

BEGINS TO LOOK AS IF THE BABE was running away from you and the rest of the sluggers. Guess we've got to admit that he's all by himself in that amazing position. I hope for the sake of your league that the Athletics keep chasing you. That ball club is good, and it will mean money and excitement if it keeps right on your heels.

The war continues hot and furious in its circuit, and it is a tough act to guide them every day. When at least six clubs are fighting for a permanent place in the National League, it is a good thing that the Braves are good at streaking through. I have hopes that the Braves will jump into the lead and win the pennant. If they do that, they will be up there, and once they arrive, they have to get my real bearings, and organize things, and in the meantime, you may see me, the Braves are the hardest working ball baseball right now. Take it from one who knows.

Lou, you have to forget about batting and feeding records of your own when you take a manager's job. The weary man at least 20 points in hitting, unless your job happens to be flying. Then everything is great.

Yours truly,

Cap Anson

days following his engagement with Heeney.
